impracticable. There is, however, little reason to doubt the accuracy of Bishop Percy's text. Indeed, that text bears internal evidence of having been very carefully prepared. Percy's Preface is reprinted, without alteration, in the present volume. Considerable additions, however, have been made to Percy's notes. Obscure allusions, on which he made no comment, have been elucidated, and his annotations on many points have been very greatly expanded. But nothing has been omitted from his notes, and all the additions, for which the present editor is solely responsible, have been enclosed in square brackets.

PREFACE.

THE "Northumberland Household Book" has been twice previously printed; first, in 1770, at the famed Westminster Press of John Nichols, the antiquary, and second, in 1827, as one of a series of more or less similar books issued by William Pickering. The first edition, which was edited and annotated by Bishop Thomas Percy, was a very limited one, being intended only for private circulation. The copies were distributed to the friends of the then Duke of Northumberland, and to some of the leading antiquaries of the period. This edition is now scarce. The second edition, which is merely a reprint of the first one, without a single additional note, was printed for publication in the ordinary way, and is much more common.

The present edition is a faithful reprint of that of 1770. Collation with the original MS. was unfortunately found to be impracticable. There is, however, little reason to doubt the accuracy of Bishop Percy's text. Indeed, that text bears internal evidence of having been very carefully prepared. Percy's Preface is reprinted, without alteration, in the present volume. Considerable additions, however, have been made to Percy's notes. Obscure allusions, on which he made no comment, have been elucidated, and his annotations on many points have been very greatly expanded. But nothing has been omitted from his notes, and all the additions, for which the present editor is solely responsible, have been enclosed in square brackets.

PREFACE.

[By BISHOP THOMAS PERCY.]

THE following pages are copied from an ancient Manuscript in possession of the Duke and Duchess of Northumberland, who conceiving that so singular a curiosity might afford the same amusement and pleasure to others, which it hath given to themselves, have caused a small impression to be taken off merely to bestow in presents to their friends.

The original Manuscript, which fills a very large folio volume, and is finely ingrossed upon a strong thick paper, had by some accident or other been lost to the Northumberland family, but was happily preserved in that of the Lords DACRE; till the present nobleman restored it to the Duke and Duchess with a politeness that deserved their particular thanks. Nor ought the very obliging offices of Lord CAMDEN to pass unacknowledged; by whose kind interposition it was presented to the family.

It was presumed, so curious a monument of ancient times deserved to be rescued from oblivion, and to be perpetuated at least in a small impression, upon several accounts.

In the FIRST place, as it exhibits a curious PICTURE OF ANCIENT MANNERS. Here we see the great magnificence of our old nobility, who seated in their castles, lived in a state and splendour very much resembling and scarce inferior to that of the Royal Court. Their Household was established upon the same plan, their Officers bore the same titles, and their Warrants ran in the same form and stile.^a This remarkable resemblance to the Royal Establishments will strike the Reader the moment he opens this Book. As the King had his Privy Council and great Council of Parliament, to assist him in enacting statutes and regulations for the public weal; so the Earl of Northumberland had his Council, composed of his principal officers, by whose advice and assistance he established this Code of Oeconomic Laws.^b As the King had his Lords and Grooms of the bed-chamber, who waited in their respective turns; so the Earl of Northumberland was attended by the Constables and Bailiffs of his several castles, &c.^c who entered into waiting in regular succession. The two first offices about his person, were occasionally to be filled by his own younger sons.^d Nor can we doubt but all the head officers of his household were Gentlemen both by birth and office; ^e such as the Comptroller, Clarke of the kitchen, Chamberlain, Treasurer, &c. &c. This appears from the servants and horses kept for their use,^f and from the table where they sat being called the KNIGHT'S-BOARD.^g Among other instances of magnificence, we cannot but remark the number of PRIESTS that were kept in household, not fewer than ELEVEN, at the head of whom presided a Doctor or Batchelor of divinity, as dean of the chapel.^h This redundance of clergymen must not be altogether attributed to the superstition of that priest-ridden age, but to the superior intelligence of the men of that order, who seem to have been almost the only persons capable of exercising any office of skill or science; so that the Surveyor of my lord's lands, his Secretary,ⁱ and the Clarke of his foreign expences,^k were all Priests; notwithstanding which, the last officer was weekly to make up his accounts on Sunday.^l

It appears however from many curious instances in this book, how deeply the devotion of that age was tingured with superstition, and how much the nobles were influenced by the Clergy.^m Indeed nothing more strongly shows the great devotion of our ancestors in the middle ages, than the number of CHAPELS in some of the Northern Castles. In buildings of this sort, where multitudes of men were often long confined within very narrow limits, every inch of space one would think must be valuable, and yet in castles of very moderate size one often finds more than one Chapel. Thus in WARKWORTH and PRUDHOW castles in Northumberland (both of them belonging to the PERCY family) are still to be seen the remains of two Chapels, one in the base court among the outer buildings, the other within the keep or body of the castle. And yet both these fortresses are by their situation much straitned for room, which is remarkably the case of Prudhow castle: and as for that of Warkworth, besides its two Chapels, in the court are also to be seen vaults designed for a considerable building. This, in the old Surveys,ⁿ is said to have been intended for a COLLEGE; by which, I suppose, we are to understand some monastic foundation.^o

SECONDLY, this book contains a compleat SYSTEM OF ANCIENT OECONOMICS. Here may be seen all the Provisions,

^o Foundations of this sort were not unusual in Castles. In 1362, a perpetual Chantry was founded in Alnwick Castle for three Priests, who were daily to celebrate mass in the Chapel of the castle for the souls of the deceased Lord Percy and others of his family. Conveniences, and Accommodations, which our nobility had procured in that half-civilized age; and even most of their Diversions and Amusements may be collected from it.^p Here are the Bills of fare, the domestic Regulations of every kind, and the methods of providing for each contingency. The minute attention paid to every the most inconsiderable article of domestic expence, and the formal stated orders established with regard to many particulars which appear to us extremely trivial, are very remote from our modern ideas and present manners: but this minuteness is not peculiar to our Household Book. The establishing a system of Domestic Oeconomy appears to have engaged the attention of our Ancestors nearly in the same degree, as the enacting public Laws and settling the Constitution of the Kingdom. In the celebrated FLETA, amidst the most important heads of Government and Law, the Author introduces a plan of Household Management, and gives the minutest Directions for regulating the most petty domestic concerns.^q Our nobility in the more early times, lived in their castles with a gross and barbarous magnificence, surrounded with rude and warlike followers, without control and without system. As they gradually emerged from this barbarity, they found it necessary to establish very minute domestic regulations, in order to keep their turbulent followers in peace and order: and from living in a state of disorderly grandeur, void of all system, would naturally enough run into the opposite extreme of reducing every thing, even the most trifling disbursements, to stated formal rules. It may be considered further, that a nobleman in the dark ages, when retired to his castle, had neither books, nor news-papers, nor literary correspondence, nor visits, nor cards, to fill up his leisure: his only amusements were field-sports, and as these, however eagerly pursued, could not fill up all his vacant hours, the Government of his Houshold would therefore be likely enough to engage his attention, if he happened to be a prudent man; and having little else to do or think of, from a meer desire of employment, he would be led to descend to the most studied minuteness in his regulations and establishments.

To a person unacquainted with the ancient value of Money, the Allowance in this book may perhaps appear scanty, and hardly consistent with the ideas entertained of the old bountiful housekeeping; as the weekly sum divided to each person taken one with another, amounts to little more than 2s. per week. But this is not sufficiently estimating the value of Money at the time this book was compiled. A Thousand Pounds was the sum annually assigned for the keeping of my Lord's house:^r the number of Persons in houshold was one hundred and sixty-six.^s That sum divided equally amongst them (omitting the fractions) amounted annually to 6*l.* os. 5*d.* $\frac{3}{4}$ each person; and weekly to 2s. 3*d.* $\frac{1}{4}$. At a time when Wheat was sold at 5s. 8*d.* per Quarter, 6*l.* os. 5*d.* $\frac{3}{4}$ would purchase just twenty-two quarters, three bushels and a half of Wheat; which at 5s. a bushel now, would cost 44*l.* 17s. 6*d.* Consequently, at this estimate, the annual proportion to each person then was nearly equivalent to 45*l.* per annum of our present money, a very great allowance to be distributed through so large a family as that of the Earl's houshold.

But even this is stating the account as much as possible in conformity to modern ideas, for it appears pretty evidently that Wheat was not the most general bread-corn used in that age, (as indeed it is hardly yet in the northern counties) but that Rye, Barley, or Oats, were the common food of the lower or middle ranks of people, who at present (in the southern parts of England at least) disdain any but the finest wheaten bread; the great difference therefore in the value of money is further to be increased by the disproportion of value between Wheat and other inferior grains.

^r See pag. 214.

^s See pag. 45.

It may further be observed, in the words of a very eminent writer,^s that "the value of Money has another variation, which we are still less able to ascertain. The rules of custom, or the different needs of artificial life, make that revenue little at one time, which is great at another. Men are rich and poor not only in proportion to what they have, but to what they want. In some ages not only necessaries are cheaper, but fewer things are necessary. In the reign of Hen. VIII. most of the elegances and expences of our present fashions were unknown: commerce had not yet distributed superfluity through the lower classes of people," and therefore the same Revenue (though the different value of money were out of the case) would have gone in those times a great way farther than it will at present.

But indeed to show, what might be done in that age with a much smaller sum, than is here allowed to the Earl's lowest servants; we need only refer to that noted passage in Latimer's sermons,^t which has been so often quoted: "My father was a yoman, and had no landes of hys owne, onely he had a farme of iij or iiij pound by yeare at the uttermost, and hereupon he tilled so muche as kept halfe a dossen men. He had walke for an hundred sheepe, and my mother milked xxx kyne. He was able, and did finde the king a harnesse, with himselfe and his horse, while [i.e. until] he came to the place that he should receiye the kinges wages. I can remember that I buckled his harness, when he went unto BLACKHEATH field. He kept me to schole. . . . He maryed my sisters wyth five pound or xx nobles a piece. . . . He kept hospitality for his poore neighbours. And some almes he gave to the poore, and all thys did he of the sayde farme. Where he that now hath it, payeth xvi pound by yeare or more, and is not able to do any thyng for hys prince, for himselfe, or for hys children, or geve a cup of drinke to the poore."

If any thing further is necessary on this subject; it will sufficiently show the plenty and liberality of the Earl's housekeeping, if we do but confront it with that which then prevailed among the other orders of men. At the time when so plentiful an allowance of good Bread and Beef was delivered out so many times a day to every the meanest servant in this Earl's family; the Commons of England in general lived at a meaner rate and fared more hardily than we can at present well conceive. To instance only in one article of their food, viz. that of their Bread, even so late as the reign of Elizabeth (when great advances had been made in luxury and refinement) the lower sort of people fed on what would not now be offered to dogs. This appears from the description of England* prefixed to Hollinshed's Chronicle, edit. 1586, where we are told^u "the Bread through the land is made of such graine as the soile yeeldeth, neverthelesse the gentilitie commonlie provide themselves sufficientlie of Wheat for their own tables, whilst their household and poore neighbours in some shires are inforced to content themselves with Rie or Barlie, yea and in time of dearth manie with bread made either of Beans, Peason, or Otes, or of altogether and some Acorns among. . . . I will not saie that this extremitie is oft so well to be seene in time of plentie as of dearth, but IF I SHOULD, I COULD EASILY BRING MY TRIALL." He afterwards speaks of the artificer and poor labouring man as seldom able to taste any other than the bad bread above-mentioned; and proceeds to describe more particularly the several sorts of Bread usually made in England, viz. MANCHET, CHEAT, or Wheaten bread, another inferior sort of wheaten bread called RAVELLED, and lastly BROWN-BREAD, "of which," says this writer, "we have Two sorts, One baked up as it cometh from the mill, so that neither the bran nor the floure are anie whit diminished. . . . The Other hath little or no floure left therein at all, . . . and it is not onlie the worst and weakest of all the other sorts, but also appointed in OLD TIME for servants, slaves, and the inferior kind of people to feed upon. Hereunto likewise because it is drie and brickle in the working . . . some adde a portion of Rie meale IN OUR TIME, whereby the rough drinesse . . . thereof is somewhat qualified, and then it is named Mescelin, that is, bread made of mingled corne. Albeit that diverse do sow or mingle Wheat and Rie . . . and sell the same at the market under the aforesaid name." He adds,^w "In champaigne countries much Rie and Barleie Bread is eaten." By the author's addition of the "Rie meale in OUR TIME," it may fairly be concluded that the OLD TIME when the Bran-bread was baked for servants, was not further distant back than the date of this Household Book, and it presents a very striking contrast to the liberal appointments provided for in it.

Before I quit this head of "Things provided," I cannot but observe that some of the articles appear to us now extremely unaccountable, as the hire of ROUGH PEWTER VESSEL,^x at the same time that a smaller quantity was ordered to be bought.^y As the Earl and his family ordinarily used Wooden Trenchers, Pewter must have been a very ornamental addition on great holidays,^a and especially the garnish or services of COUNTERFEIT VESSEL;^b which, I presume, was some metal gilt or washed over.

It is remarkable that they should be obliged to carry all the Beds, Hangings, and Furniture along with them whenever they removed. Indeed the usual manner of hanging the rooms in the old castles, was only to cover the naked stone walls with Tapestry or Arras hung upon tenter hooks, from which they were easily taken down upon every removal.^c On such an occasion the number of Carts^d employed in a family of this size, must have formed a caravan nearly as large as those which traverse the deserts of the East.

I cannot conclude this part of my subject without remarking, that from the total silence throughout the book with regard to GLASS, I am led to believe that this very beautiful and useful material, though it had been perhaps long applied to the decorating Churches,^e was not as yet very commonly used in Dwelling-houses or Castles. The author of the Description of England, (before quoted) writing about sixty years after, says^f that "OF OLD TIME," (probably meaning times not much older than that of this Household Book) "our countrie houses insteede of Glasse did use much Lattise and that made either of wicker or fine rifts of oke in checkerwise. I read also that some of the better sort in and before the times of the Saxons, (who notwithstanding used some Glasse also since the time of Benedict Biscop the Monk that brought the feat of Glassing first into this land) did make panels of Horne instead of Glasse, and fix them in woode calmes. But as Horne in windows is now [A.D. 1577.] quite laid downe in every place, so our Lattises are also growne into lesse use [i.e. not quite laid aside] because Glasse is come to be so plentifull, and within very little so good cheape, if not better then the other." The writer afterwards adds this remarkable passage. "Heretofore also the houses of our princes and noblemen were often glazed with Berill (an example whereof is YET to be seen in Sudleie castle) and in diverse other places with fine Christall, but this especially in the times of the Romans, whereof also some fragments have been taken up in old ruines." But with regard to Glass (now so cheap and common a conveniency) even after it began to be used in windows, it was still preserved with great care, as a precious rarity; as appears from the survey of Alnwick castle made in 1567, in which is this very remarkable passage: "And because throwe extreme winds the Glasse of the windowes of this and other my Lord's castles and houses here in the countrie dooth decay and waste, Yt were good the whole Leights of everie windowe at the departure of his Lordshippe from lyinge at any of his said castels and houses, and dowering [i.e. during] the tyme of his Lordship's absence, or others lying in them, were taken doune and ladé up in safety: And at sooche tyme as ather his Lordshipe or anie other sholde lye at anie of the said places, the same might then be set uppe of newe with smale charges to his Lp. wher [i.e. whereas] now the decaye thereof shall be verie costlie and chargeable to be repayred."

^c One department of the King's wardrobe is the REMOVING WARDROBE, which consisted chiefly of the Arras, that was thus to be hung up against the naked walls of the King's bedchamber, and perhaps another room or two of reception.—The Polish nobles now travel in this manner, they drive the Jews out of their houses, whilst in their progress; and their attendants fix the tapestry hangings which they carry with them, so as to make the lodgings tolerably comfortable.

LASTLY, This Book may be considered as a very valuable SUPPLEMENT TO THE CHRONICON PRETIOSUM; and the more so, as Bishop FLEETWOOD'S excellent Essay on that subject is remarkably defective with regard to the period of time comprehended in this Book. Of this the learned author himself complains, declaring that all his diligence could not procure him sufficient information to render this part of his work compleat. The curious investigator therefore of subjects of this sort, will be glad to find the peculiar defects of the Bishop's Book so happily supplied in the present work: Wherein the Prices of all kinds of provisions and marketable commodities are clearly laid down; wages and stipends fixed and stated; current expences settled and adjusted, and even arbitrary gifts and rewards reduced to a regular invariable rule.^g From the following pages also the just proportion of food to labour, and of money to both, may be easily deduced. All these and many other particulars of the same curious nature, are here exhibited; and the whole disposed in so regular and clear a manner, that no Supplemental Tables were necessary to new-arrange or distribute them.

It is necessary only to give the Reader one caution in the use and application of the Rates and Prices: viz. that some allowance ought to be made for their being fixed and adjusted at such a distance from the capital. In that age there was little or no communication between one part of England and another: no regular conveyance from the provinces to the metropolis; and therefore the product of the inland countries was for the most part obliged to be consumed at home. This would naturally occasion things to be at a much lower price in a remote northern county like Yorkshire, than they would in the south, or in the neighbourhood of London. And yet the Prices of WHEAT and OATS, as given in the CHRONICON PRETIOSUM, remarkably agree with those laid down at the Beginning of this Work,^h e.g.:

“ In 1504, Antiq. Canterb.	Cronicon	Houshold Book,
Appendix, p. 27. WHEAT	Pretiosum	1512.

^h See p. 4, p. 22.

In 1512. OATS the Quarter. ol. 2s. od. ol. 2s. od."

[Chron. Pret., p. 116.]

I say "at the Beginning of this Work," because the Prices of the very same articles are found to vary in the succeeding pages:ⁱ but this is easily accounted for, as we know the book was compiled at different times, and the Warrants bear so many different dates,^k viz. from 1512 to 1525. This difference of Date the Reader will advert to in his Computations.

As the Reader will expect some account of the great Earl and his Family, whose Economic Rules he is going to peruse, it is proper to inform him here that

HENRY ALGERNON PERCY, fifth Earl of Northumberland, was born on the thirteenth of January, 1477-8. His father was slain, while he was a minor, in a popular insurrection in Yorkshire, April 28, 1489. In 1497, young as he was, he was one of the chieftains that commanded at the battle of BLACKHEATH, against the lord Audley and his adherents; and was early engaged in other public services. But what principally distinguished him, was the very magnificent and splendid manner in which he conducted the princess Margaret to the borders of Scotland, on her marriage with James IV. in 1503, on which occasion his dress, furniture, equipage and attendance was more like that of a prince than a subject, as is particularly observed by HALL in his Chronicle; where may be seen at large a full description of this very gallant show; as also in the late curious Additions to the COLLECTANEA of LELAND.^l For the other particulars of this Earl's history, we must refer the reader to Dugdale or Collins; and shall only observe here, that having been early installed a Knight of the Garter, he died about the middle of the year 1527.

He appears to have been a nobleman of great magnificence and taste: as is inferred not only from the instance above-mentioned, and the splendid Establishments in the following Book; but from the very noble monuments which he erected in Beverley minster to the memory of his father and mother (the fourth Earl of Northumberland^m and his Countess). These are executed in the finest style of Gothic architecture, and remain to this day lasting proofs of his love and taste for the arts, as well as of his generosity and filial piety. He appears also to have had a great passion for literature, and was a liberal patron of such genius as that age produced. This was the more to his honour, as perhaps at no period of time his brother peers in general were more illiterate.ⁿ He encouraged SKELTON, the only professed poet of that reign, who wrote an Elegy on the death of his father. But still stronger proofs of his literary turn may be collected from a very curious and splendid MS. which had formerly belonged to this nobleman, and is at present preserved in the British Museum.^o It contains a large collection of Poems, finely engrossed upon vellum, and richly illuminated, which had been transcribed for his use. The Poems are chiefly those of Lydgate; after which follow the above Elegy of Skelton and some smaller compositions, which evidently prove his love of letters and passion for poetry. Among these are a History in Verse of the PERCY family, presented to him by a Chaplain of his own; and what is still more remarkable, a large series of POETICAL INSCRIPTIONS, which he had caused to be written on the Walls and Ceilings of the Principal Apartments at Leckinfield and Wressel.^p Though these are rather to be commended for their grave moral cast, than for their poetical merit, they are at least as good as any other compositions of the same period. To these proofs of this Earl's literary character, may perhaps be further added the remarkable provision in the following book, that his Almonar should be "a Maker of Interludes;"^q and even the bare mention in it of my Lord's and my Lady's LIBRARIES^r deserves notice, at a time when many of the first nobility could hardly read or write their names.

He married CATHERINE, daughter and coheir of Sir Robert Spencer, Knt. and of Eleanor his wife, daughter and coheir of Edmund Beaufort, duke of Somerset. By this lady, who was second cousin to King Henry VII. he had the following Children,^s viz.

HENRY Lord PERCY, his eldest son, who succeeding him

So the Statute stands at present; but in the more ancient Statutes given by K. Edward VI. the passage runs thus:—

in his titles and estate, became sixth Earl of Northumberland, and is recorded by our historians for his unsuccessful passion for queen ANN BULLEN :

Sir THOMAS PERCY, Knt. his second son, who suffered death, for being concerned in the Yorkshire insurrection in 1538; but whose two sons, THOMAS and HENRY, were afterwards restored, and became successively Earls of Northumberland :

Sir INGELRAM PERCY, Knt. third son, of whom nothing particular is recorded :

Lady MARGARET PERCY, who became wife of Henry lord Clifford, first Earl of Cumberland of that family.

All these are mentioned in the Houshold Book: but besides the above, he had another younger daughter, viz. Lady MAUD PERCY, who was married to William Lord Coniers, and who, from the silence of the Houshold Book with regard to her, it is evident was not born till after the articles were compiled which relate to the Nursery (contractedly called 'Nurcy' in the book): whence it may be inferred, that most of the other Children were extremely young; for the exact dates of their Births are not preserved.

As mention is made of the Earl's Brethren, (defectively written 'Breder' or 'Brether' in the book) it may be proper to enumerate them. These were

Sir WILLIAM PERCY, Knt. who bore a principal command, and signalized his valour at the battle of Flodden.

ALLAN PERCY, Clerk, who was Warden of Trinity college at Arundel in Sussex, and JOSCELINE PERCY, who married the heiress of Walter Frost, Esq. of Featherston and Beverley in Yorkshire, and became ancestor of the PERCIES of Beverley, since extinct.

He had also three Sisters, ELEANOR, wife of Edward Stafford, duke of Buckingham; ANNE, married to William Fitz-Allan, Earl of Arundel; and ELIZABETH, who died an infant.

NOTHING now remains but to assure the Reader, that the following Copy hath been printed from the Original with all possible exactness, and it is hoped will be found to contain fewer Errata than could have been expected in so difficult a work. All the peculiarities of Style and Orthography, and even the very Errors of the MS. have been retained with as scrupulous a fidelity as the most rigid Antiquary could desire. No points or stops occurred in the original, and therefore none have been inserted in the printed copy; but the want of them is occasionally supplied by the proper disposal of the Capital Letters. Only one innovation hath been admitted, and that for the sake of clearness and distinctness, viz. the subjoining to some of the articles the Algebraic Mark of Equation= $=$, which had not been invented when this book was written.

It was once intended that a Glossary should have been given of the more unusual Words, but upon minute inquiry these were found to be few obscure in themselves; and as for such as were merely rendered so by the uncouth, obsolete, or defective Orthography, it was judged that a small degree of attention in the Reader would easily enable him to decypher these. With regard to the obscurities in the Style or Expression, whether they proceed from the provincial dialect, the antiquated idiom, or the ungrammatical phrase of the writer, they will be generally removed or explained by the context. The greatest difficulties will be found to arise from the subject matter itself; from the frequent allusion to ancient manners, customs or things; and it was thought best to give the illustration of these in the form of NOTES at the End of the Book. Few and inconsiderable as these will be thought, the collecting them cost much time and labour; for the subjects were so much out of the common track of reading, that it was difficult to know where to look for information; and if many passages equally obscure are passed over without notice, it was because the Editor could not meet with any explanations that were satisfactory to himself, and he rather chose to leave them to the Reader's own sagacity and research, than to trouble him with vague and uncertain conjectures.

[TO THE FIRST EDITION, 1770.]

IT will be necessary to premise here, that the ancient modes of Computation are retained in this book: According to which it is only in Money that the Hundred consists of Five Score: in all other articles the Enumerations are made by the old Teutonic Hundred of Six Score, or 120.

All numbers are expressed (not by Figures, but) by the old numerical Letters as in the MS. and that in a manner somewhat particular, thus,

V^{xx}. is Five score. Pag. 138.

V^cXLVIII. is Five hundred and forty-eight. P. 370.

M

VCCLX. denotes Five thousand, two hundred and sixty. P. 3.

CCCCiiij^{xx} xvj. reads Four hundred, four-score and sixteen. Pag. 137.

After all, frequent Mistakes occur in the Arithmetical Computations: nor does the Sum Total always agree with the Enumeration of the Particulars: but these are generally left as they stand in the MS.

With regard to the Contractions, the following are the most common, viz.

Di. or Dim. is Dimidium, or Half.

Ob. or Obol. is Obolus, or Half-penny.

Qu. or Quad. is Quadrans, or Farthing.

Lb. is the Pound weight, as L. is the numerical Pound in money.

Mc. is Mark, or 13s. 4d.

Bz. is bushel.

Pc. is Peck.

j—at the end of an article, only denotes One Article or Paragraph, as in pag. 78.

One or two peculiarities of Phrase may just be noted here, thus,

‘The pece’ or ‘piece,’ is now expressed by ‘a piece,’ (Which is also sometimes used, pag. 183.) E. g. p. 2. ‘Mutons, after xvijd the pece,’ would now be—‘after ‘xvijd a-piece,’ or xvijd each.

‘Less or more at all,’ would now be writ ‘less or more ‘in all.’ Thus pag. 138. ‘save xd. more at all:’ i.e. ‘except 10d. more in all;’ or 10d. over and above the sum total.

Lastly, It may be proper to inform the Reader, that where it was necessary to insert or alter any Word in the Text, it is carefully inserted between inverted Commas, ‘thus.’

NOTES.

“REMANETH.”] This is a Corruption of the Lat. Word Remanet, being the account of all such Stuff as remains unspent, (See p. 15.) Such an account is still intituled the Remanet, in our College Books in the Universities. See also p. 65.

Ibid.

“Stots and Whies.”] A STOT is the name still used in Yorkshire for a Young Ox or Bullock: A WHIE that of a young Heifer that has never had a Calf, called in Scotland a Quhey.

Ibid.

“Sestrans,” are Cisterns.

Page 3.

“Wax wrought in Quarions.”] A Quarion was a square lump of Wax with a wick in the center: Round Lumps of the same are still used in the Royal Nursery under the name of Mortises.

Page 6.

“Gascoin Wine, viz. Red Wine—White White—Claret Wine.”] “The CLARET Wine was what the Gascoigns call at present Vin Claret, being a pale red Wine, as distinguished from the deeper Reds; and was the produce of a district near Bourdeaux called Graves: whence the English in ancient times fetched the Wine they called CLARET, and concerning which many very particular regulations may be found in the old Chronique de Bourdeaux.”

The RED Wine mentioned above was the coarse red Wine, the growth of what they call the Palus or deep low clayey Countries; of which there is a great district near Bordeaux, that still produces this sort of Wine.

The WHITE Wine was probably what we now call Vin de Graves and Priniac, both of them the produce of that Country, which was generally called Gascony by the English; who antiently applied this name to all that part of France, which stretches away from the Loire to the Pyrennean Mountains."

This account is communicated by a gentleman of distinction, who long resided in Bourdeaux, and had particularly studied this subject.

Page 11.

"Hops for Brewing.]" This seems to contradict the old received account, that HOPS and HERESY came into England both in the same reign: See Baker's Chronicle, among the Casualties of Henry the VIIIth's Reign. viz.

"About the 15th of Henry VIII. it happened that diverse "things were newly brought into England, whereupon this "Rhyme was made,

"Turkies, Carps, Hoppes, Piccarell and Beere,
"Came into England all in one year."

This perhaps may relate only to the cultivation of HOPS, when they were first planted in England, tho' the produce might be imported before from Flanders.

The "BREWING OF BEER" however is the subject of an intire Section in this book, vid. Sect. XXII. p. 136.—but it is observable that TURKIES are not once mentioned among the Fowls to be provided for the Table. See Sect. XIX. &c.

Page 19.

"Granes" are probably what are now called "Granes of "Paradise," small pungent seeds brought from the East Indies, much resembling Cardamum seeds in appearance, but in properties approachiug nearer to pepper. See Lewis's Materia Medica, p. 298.

“Saunders.” This fragrant wood, brought from the East Indies, was principally used for colouring the confections red: as “Saffron” was for tinging them yellow. See Lewis, p. 517.

“Gallina,” Lat. Galanga, is the root of a grassy-leaved plant brought from the East Indies, of an aromatic smell, and hot biting bitterish Taste, anciently used among other Spices, but now almost laid aside. See Lewis, p. 286.

Page 41.

“Yoman Cook for the Mouth.”—“Grome ‘Cook’ for ‘the mouth.’] These two attended hourly in the Kitchen at the “Haistry,” i. e. the Fire place (still called the “Haister” in Shropshire,) to see to the roasting of the Meat used at Breakfast and other Meals, (see page 313, 314.) These and most of the other Titles of Office which occur in this book, still are, or were very lately, kept up in the Royal Houshold.

Page 42.

“A Taberett—a Lute—and a Rebec.”] The TABRET, or Tabour, and the LUTE need no explanation. The REBECK was a kind of Fiddle consisting of three Strings.

Page 60.

“Liveries,” are things ‘livered, i. e. delivered out.

Ibid.

“Taillis of the Furniunturs,” (so it should have been printed.] The Taill and Swatch are I suppose the Tally and its Counterpart.—“Furniuntur,” corrupt for Furniantur, is the account of things Baked, from the barbarous Latin Word Furniare, to Bake.

“Brasianturs” is the account of the Liquors Brewed from the Barb. Lat. Brasiare, to Brew.

“Necanturs” is the account of the Slaughter-house, from Lat. Necare.

Anciently all Houshold Accounts were kept in Latin, as they still are in our Colleges in the Universities, and the above Latin Words became a sort of Technical Terms for the heads of the several Accounts.

“Expenduntur” is the Account of the Things expended.

“The Pye of the Expenduntur” was the Sum Total of the Expences, as they still say in some of the Colleges, In Pede Compti. We have the Word, PYE, 'tho used in a somewhat different sense, yet manifestly proceeding from the same Derivation, in the Title of the “Court of Pye-powders.”

Page 68.

“St. Elyn Day,” was I suppose what is called in the Roman Kalendar Dies Helenæ reginæ, which is the 21st of May.

Page 80.

“Scamlynge Days in Lent.”] These are elsewhere (p. 85.) called “Scamblynge Days,” and (p. 57.) “Scamlyngs.” Our present Word ‘Scrambling’ was anciently written SCAMBLING: so that Scambling Days in Lent, were Days when no regular Meals were provided, but every one scrambled and shifted for himself as he could.

So Shakespear in his Play of Henry Vth. Act. I. Sc. I. in the old original Editions, speaks of which modern Editors have altered to 'Scrambling.' See Johnson's Dictionary, and the Glossary to the Oxford Edition of Shakespeare (2d Impression, 1771.)

“the scrambling and unquiet time.”

Ibid.

"Reversion," is what is left at Table, (see page 349.) The "Pantler was the Officer who presided over the Panty: as the "Butler" over the Buttery: and the "Haistiller" over the Haistery, see above, p. 399.

Page 81.

"My Lady's Chamberer."] The CHAMBERER was a Female Attendant, being included under the Title above of "My Lady's Gentlewoman;" besides the Officer, who attended my Lord in his Bedchamber, is called his CHAMBERLAIN, see page 85. It is a corruption of the French Chambriere, a Chambermaid. See Cotgrave's Diction.

Page 85.

"The Ewery" was the Office where the Ewers were kept. Our Ancestors always washed before and after dinner, as they used no Forks. This custom of Washing in form out of a Silver Ewer, is still kept up on solemn days in some of the Colleges in our Universities.

The use of FORKS at Table, did not prevail in England till the reign of James 1st. as we learn from a remarkable Passage in Coryat: the insertion of which may be pardoned, among the petty Collections here raked together. The Reader will laugh at the solemn Manner in which this important discovery or innovation, is related.

"Here I will mention a thing that might have been spoken
"of before in discourse of the first Italian towne. I ob-
"serve'd a custom in all those Italian Cities and Townes
"through the which I passed, and is not used in any other "country that I saw in my travels, neither do I thinke that "any other nation of Christendome doth use it, but only

 "Italy. The Italian and also most Strangers that are com-
 "morant in Italy, doe always at their meals use a LITTLE
 "FORKE when they cut their meat. For while with their
 "Knife, which they hold in one hand, they cut the meate out
 "of the dish, they fasten the Fork which they hold in their
 "other hand upon the same dish, so that whatsoever he be
 "that sitting in the company of any others at meale, should
 "unadvisedly touch the dish of meat with his fingers from "which all at the table doe cut, he will give occasion of
 "offence unto the company as having transgressed the lawes
 "of good manners, in so much that for his error he shall
 "be at the least brow-beaten, if not reprehended in wordes.
 "This form of feeding I understand is generally used in all "places of Italy, their Forks being for the most part made of "yronn, steele, and some of silver, but those are used only
 "by Gentlemen. The reason of this their curiosity is, be"cause the Italian cannot by any means indure to have his
 "dish touched with fingers, seeing all mens fingers are not
 "alike cleane. Hereupon I myself thought good to imitate
 "the Italian fashion by this forked cutting of meate, not "only while I was in Italy, but also in Germany, and of"tentimes in England since I came home: being once quip-
 "ped for that frequent using of my Forke, by a certain
 "learned Gentleman, a familiar friend of mine, Mr. Law"rence Whitaker; who in his merry humour doubted not "to call me at table Furcifer, only for using a Forke at feed"ing, but for no other cause."

Coryat's Crudities, p. 90, 91. 4to, London 1611.

Even when Heylin published his Cosmography, (1652) Forks were still a Novelty, see his 3d book, where having spoke of the Ivory Sticks used by the Chinese, he adds, "The "use of Silver FORKS with us, by some of our spruce Gal“lants taken up OF LATE, came from hence into Italy, and

Page 100.

“Revestry” from the French Revestir, contractedly writ
VESTRY. as in page 375.

“My Lord’s Boord-end.”]. In the Houses of our ancient Nobility they dined at long Tables. The Lord and his principal Guests sate at the upper end of the first Table, in the Great Chamber, which was therefore called the Lord’s BOARD-END. The Officers of his household, and inferior Guests, at long Tables below in the Hall. In the middle of each Table stood a great Salt Seller and as particular care was taken to place the Guests according to their rank, it became a mark of distinction whether a person sate above or below the Salt.

This and the following Section, which relate to the Order of serving up the Victuals, will be much illustrated by the following short Memoirs communicated to the Editor.

I.

“An Account how the EARL OF WORCESTER lived at Rag-
“land Castle, before the Civil Wars [began in 1641.]”

“AT eleven o’clock the Castle Gates were shut, and the “Tables laid; Two in the Dining-Room; Three in the Hall;
“One in Mrs. Watson’s Appartment, where the Chaplains “eat, (Sir Toby Matthews* being the first;) Two in the “House-keeper’s Room, for the ladies Women.

* This was probably the noted Sir Toby Matthews, enumerated among Mr. Walpole’s Painters, who wrote the famous Character of Lucy Percy, Countess of Carlisle, printed by Fenton in his Notes on Waller’s Poems. He was Son of an Archbishop of Ycrk, but turning Papist had probably accepted the place of Chaplain in this great Earl’s Family, who was a Roman Catholick.

“The Earl came into the Dining-Room, attended by his Gentlemen. As soon as he was seated, Sir Ralph Blackstone Steward of the House retired. The Comptroller Mr. Holland attended with his Staff: As did the Sewer Mr. Blackburn; the Daily Waiters, Mr. Clough, Mr. Selby and Mr. Scudamore; with many Gentlemen’s Sons, from two to seven hundred Pound a Year bred up in the Castle; my Lady’s Gentleman-Usher Mr. Harcourt; my Lord’s Gentlemen of the Chamber, Mr. Morgan, and Mr. Fox.

“At the FIRST TABLE sate the noble Family, and such of the Nobility as came there.

“At the SECOND TABLE in the Dining-Room, sate Knights and honourable Gentlemen, attended by Footmen.

“In the HALL, at the FIRST TABLE sate

“Sir Ralph Blackstone, Steward.—The Comptroller, Mr. Holland.—The Secretary.—The Master of the Horse, Mr. Delawar.—The Master of the Fish-ponds, Mr. Andrews.—My Lord Herbert’s Preceptor, Mr. Adams.—With such Gentlemen as came there under the degree of a Knight; attended by Footmen, and plentifully served with Wine.

“At the SECOND TABLE in the HALL (served from My Lord’s Table, and with other hot meat) sate

“The Sewer, with the Gentlemen Waiters, and Pages, to the Number of twenty-four.

“At the THIRD TABLE in the HALL sate

“The Clerk of the Kitchen, with the Yeomen Officers of the House,* two Grooms of the Chambers, &c.

[Other OFFICERS of the HOUSHOLD †, were]

“Chief Auditor, Mr. Smith.—Clerk of the Accounts,

* I know not whether this Article should come in above or below the ensuing Title. † sc. which, tho’ included in the above Account, are not there particularly enumerated.

“ George Wharton.—Purveyor of the Castle, Mr. Salisbury.
 “ —Ushers of the Hall, Mr. Moyle and Mr. Cooke.—Closet-“ keeper.—Gentleman of the Chapel, Mr. Davies.—Keeper “ of the Records.—Master of the Wardrobe.—Master of the “ Armoury.—Master Groom of the Stable, for the War-
 “ horses 12.—Master of the Hounds.—Master Falconer.—
 “ Porter and his Man.

II.

LORD FAIRFAX'S ORDERS for the Servants of his Houshold
 [after the Civil Wars.]

“ ORDER for the House Remembrance for SERVANTS.

“ That all the Servants be redy upon the Terras at such “ tymes as the Strangers do come, to attend their aught“ inge.

PRAYERS.

“ That one of the Chapel Bells be rung before the Prayers

“ one quarter of an hour ; at which Summons the Butler
 “ must prepare for Coveringe, but not Cover.

“ PORTER.

“ When Prayers shall beginne (or a very little before) the “ Gates on all sides must be shutt and locked, and the Porter
 “ must come into Prayers with all the Keyes; and after Service
 “ is done, the Gate must be opened until the Usher warne to “ the Dresser.

“ The Buttler with the Yeoman of the Chamber, or some “ other Yeoman must go to Cover. The Prayers done, “ Formes and Cussins, where the Ladyes and the rest did sit,
 “ must be removed.

“ SERVANTS after SUPPER.

“ After Supper (I mean of the Servants) they must pre“ sently reaire into the Dying Chamber, and there remove “ Stooles, see what other things be necessary, and attende fur“ ther directions until Liveryes be served, which they must be “ ready for upon the Warninge ; and in the meane tyme let the “ Buttler (with one to helpe him) make them ready, And let
 “ not these Servants depart until the best sort of Strangers
 “ have taken their Lodgings ; And the Porter must locke the “ Doores and keep the Keys.

“ MORNING.

“ Let the Servants attend by seaven of the Clock in the “ morning in the Hall.

“ BREAKFASTS.

“ The Clerk of the Kitchen must appoynt the Cooks, what “ must be for Breakfasts for the Ladyes in their Chambers, and “ likewise for the Gentlemen in the Hall or Parlour, which “ must be served by eight of the Clock in the Morninge and “ not after.

“ Dinner must be ready by Eleven of the Clock. Prayers
 “ after Tenne, and the Orders observed as is before said.

“ THE HALL.

“ The Great Chamber being served, the Steward and “ Chaplaine must sit down in the Hall, and call unto them
 “ the Gentlemen if there be any unplaced above, and then the “ Servants of the Strangers as their Masters be in Degree.

“ The USHERS words of DIRECTIONS..

“ First when they go to Cover, Hee must go before them
 “ through the Hall, crying “ By your leaves Gentlemen, “ stand by.”

“ The Coveringe done He must say “ Gentlemen and Yeo-
 “ men for Plate.”

“ Then he must warn to the Dresser, “ Gentlemen and “ Yeomen to Dresser.”

“ And he must attend the Meat going through the Hall, “ crying “ By your leaves, my Masters.” Likewise he must “ warn for the Second Course, and attend it as aforesaid.

“ If Bread or Beere be wanting on the Hall Table, he must “ call aloud at the Barre “ Bread or Beere for the Hall.”

“ If any unworthy Fellow do unmannerly sett himself down “ before his Betters, he must take him up and place him lower.

“ For the CHAMBER.

“ Let the best fashioned, and apparelled Servants attend
 “ above the Salte, the Rest belowe.

“ If one Servant have occasion to speak to another about “ Service att the Table, let him whisper, for noyse is uncivil.

“ If any Servant have occasion to go forth of the Chamber
 “ for any thing, let him make haste and see that no more

“ then twoe be absent. And for prevention of Errands, let all “ Sauces be ready at the Door ; for even one messe of Mustard
 “ will take a Man’s attendance from the Table ; but least “ any thing happend unexpected, let the Boy stand within
 “ the Chamber Door for Errants. And see that your Water
 “ and Voyder be ready soe soon as Meate is served and sett
 “ on the Table without. Have a good eye to the Board for “ empty Dishes and placing of others, And let not the Board
 “ be unfurnished.

“ The CUP BOARD.

“ Let no man fill Beere or Wine but the Cup-board Keeper,
 “ who must make choice of his Glasses or Cups for the “ Company, and not serve them hand over heade. He must “ also know which be for Beere and which for Wine ; for “ it were a foul thing to mix them together.

“ Once againe let me admonish Silence, for it is the greatest “ part of Civility.

“ Let him which doth order the Table be the last Man
 “ in it [sc. the Room,] to see that nothing be left behind that “ should be taken away.

“ Many things I cannot remember which I refer to your “ good care, otherwise I should seem to write a Booke
 “ hereof.”

In looking over the List of BIRDS and FOWLS which are enumerated in this XIXth Section, it may not be improper to observe, that Cranes, are now judged to have forsaken this Island. (See Mr. Penant’s British Zoology) but they were then almost as common as the Heron or Heron-sew.

Wypes, are what are now more generally called Lapwings. Wipa is still the Swedish Name. Ibid.

Stints, are Birds, that frequent the banks of rivers, and sea-shores in Winter. They are described under the name of Purre in the British Zoology, Vol. II. p. 374.

The Redshanks, the Bytters or Bitterns, the Reys (or Ruffs and Reeves) the Sholards or Shovelers, Knots, &c. are all well known, or may be found described in the above Book.

The Tern, is the Sea-swallow, Ibid. By Great Birds was probably meant Fieldfare, Thrush, &c. by Small Birds Sparrows, Larks, &c.

In the List of Birds here served up to Table, are many Fowls, which are now discarded as little better than rank Carrion.

“ The striking out of Messes.”] This is a custom still kept up in some of our Colleges, where the Cook cuts out a piece of meat for four Persons, to divide as they please among themselves, who are said to MESS together.

Page 144.

"Waigeth," is here used for Wages (v. p. 147, 182.) So before in Page 118. "Causeth" for Causes.

Pages 157-158.

"OR it be entered:" i. e. BEFORE it be entered. OR in old English signified BEFORE, as it does still in Shropshire, where it is pronounced ORE. So in Shakespeare's Kg. John, Act. 4. sc. 5.

"Twill be,

"Two long days journey, Lords, OR E'ER we meet."

that is, 'before ever we meet.'

So again in the old Tragedy of "M. Arden of Feversham, "1529," 4to. the Wife says,

"He shall be murdered OR [i. e. before] the Guests

"come in."

Sign. H. 3.

The Phrase OR E'ER is not rightly understood by such as imagine E'ER here signifies "before," or is the same as ERE: E'ER is merely the contraction of EVER, and is barely augmentative; it is the Word OR or ORE which signifies "before," and is synonymous to ERE. Veteres Angli ER et OR sine Discrimine scribebant: says Lye in Junii Etymol. ad verb. ERE.

“Turnynge,” (so it is here in MS. as in page 134, not “Tunninge” which is an Erratum.) i. e. the Beer should be made stronger in summer than Winter to prevent its turning sour. BIG is also the name of a species of Barley, of which the Malt might possibly be made; and then BIGGER may mean more impregnated with BIG.

“Warrants to be servide out.”] SERVIDE is an Erratum; the MS. has SEWIDE. To SEW or SUE out a Warrant was the ancient proper Phrase: from the Fr. suivir.

“WILLIAM WORME, my Cofferer and General Recey-
“vour, &c.”] This WILLIAM WORME, who is here invested with such great Trusts, and whose name occurs before so familiarly, as to be used instead of his Office, (vid. p. 56.) continued to be employed under the sixth Earl of Northumberland, when he had the still more important Post of that Earl’s Treasurer; at length he fell under a suspicion of treachery, and of betraying his Master to Cardinal Wolsey, who appears to have treated that young Lord in a very arbitrary and imperious manner. I have now before me a Series of Letters writ by this sixth Earl of Northumberland (Son of the Author of our Household Book); in one of which he mentions a very particular instance of the Cardinal’s tyranny, in seizing upon the furniture of his Father’s Chapel, particularly the fine Service Books, and applying them to his own use. As this Letter gives us a curious Picture of the Manners, as well as Literature of our first Nobility at that time, I shall here insert a great part of it; and that the rather, as it is a full vindication of this Earl of Northumberland from the Charge of Ingratitude, in being the person employed to arrest the Cardinal at his Castle of Cawood. He had been placed under the Cardinal's Roof by his Father, among other young Noblemen, who accepted of menial Offices under that proud Prelate; but it plainly appears from these Letters, that he had been treated with so much harshness and contempt, as to be under no great obligation to him on that account. In a former Letter he tells his friend, that the Cardinal had wrote to forbid him attending the funeral of his own Father to Beverly, and had treated him with many other Indignities.

These Letters are written soon after that Earl's Death in 1527 and are directed "To his beloved Cousyn Thomas Arundel, "one of the Gentlemen of my Lord Legates Prevey Chamber," whom he addresses with the familiar Appellation of "Bedfellow" as a term of Endearment: Which however strange it may appear now, was consistent with the title of manners in the middle ages: Holingshed in his Chronicle, tells us of that Lord Scrope, who was one of the Conspirators against K. Henry V. "The said Lord Scroope was in such "favour with the King, that he admitted him sometime to "be his BEDFELLOW; in whose fidelity the King reposed "[much] trust," &c. Vid. Vol 3. sub. Ann. 1415.

"Bedfellow, After my most harté recomendacion: Thys "Monday the iii^d off August I resevyd by my Servaunt, Letters "from yow beryng datt the xx^h day off July, deliveryd unto "hym the same day at the Kyngs town of Newcastle; wher "in I do perseayff my Lord Cardenalls pleasour ys to have "such Boks as was in the Chapell of my lat lord and ffayther "(wos soll Jhu pardon) To the accomplishment of which at "your desyer I am confformable, notwithstanding I trust to be "able ons to set up a Chapel off myne owne. I know not whether the above offer was accepted, or the said William WORME committed to durance in Alnwick Castle: but there is a tradition in the place, that an Auditor was formerly confined in the Dungeon under one of the Towers, till he could make up his Accounts to his Lord's Satisfaction.

It is perhaps needless to observe that “Yeven,” or “Yoven,” was anciently used for “Given:” so “Yef,” in p. 279. for “Give,” and “Yates” for “Gates,” &c. “Leck” in this page is evidently a contraction for Leckinfield.

Page 232.

The ALB was an ancient linen Garment worn at the administration of the Communion, but differed from the Surplice, in being made to fit the body close like a Cassock, with close sleeves, and tyed round the middle with a girdle or sash. It was sometimes embroidered with various colours and adorned with Fringes. See Wheatly on the Com. Prayer. pag. 107.

* sc the College, which Wolsey had then newly founded at Oxford, originally “Cardinal College,” now ‘Christ Church.’

It seems also to be used here for the fine Linen Cloth, employed the Altar.

Page 242.

“Haunsmen” or “Hanshmen,” (more frequently written “Henchmen” or “Henxmen”) was the old English Name for the Pages, so called from their standing at their Lord’s HAUNCH or side. The Earl of Northumberland had three young Gentlemen who attended him in this capacity, (p. 332.) and are classed along with his Wards, &c. (p. 3. 5.) and next to his own Sons (vid. p. 349.)

Ibid.

“Aumer,” i. e. Almoner (vid. p. 44.) This sort of contraction is familiar in our Language; so the Ambry in Westminster is corrupted from Almonary, Eleemosunary.—It is not easy to account why the name “Under-Almoner” should be given to the Servant, who supplied the Grooms of the Chamber with wood (vid. p. 45. 243.)

Ibid.

The PISTOLER was the Clark, who read the Epistle: The GOSPELLER or Priest who read the Gospel, is mentioned above, see also page 44.

Page 280.

The “Dormount Book,” and “Wering-Book,” were Books wherein the Accounts of the Linnen (vid. p. 337) and perhaps all other sorts of Cloth, Stuffs, &c. (see p. 334.) and Wardrobe Accounts were entered. The WERING BOOK probably contained Entries of all such parcels of Linen, &c. as were in actual Wear: The DORMOUNT BOOK, of such as were laid up and not in present Use.

The Year, as to Household Affairs, ended at Michaelmas: Of this Mode of computation, a relique is still preserved in the Custom of Hiring Servants at Michaelmas in the Midland Counties.

“The Clark Avenar,” was the Clark who kept account of the Oats and Corn used in the Stables, &c. Lat. Avena, (see p. 295.) One of the Towers in the outward Court at Alnwick Castle is still called the AVENAR’S TOWER.

Ibid.

BROACHES are Spits; “a child for the Broches,” was a boy to turn the Spits. To BROCHE is to spit, or run through; hence the same verb is applied to a hogshead or vessel of wine, &c. see page 58. where it is ordered that Vinegar be made of broken Wines; and that when they are past drawing and can be set no more “of broche,” [i. e. a-broach] that then the “Laggs” or Lees be put by in a vessel to make Vinegar. In a secondary sense a BROCHE came to signify a Lady’s Bodkin, and so occurs in Shakespeare and other old English Writers.

“To Ten of the Clock* that my Lord goes to dinner,”] TEN o’clock continued to be the Dining Hour in the University of Cambridge, in the Reign of Edward VI. as appears from a very remarkable passage in a Sermon of Thomas Lever, (who was afterwards appointed first Master of Emanuel College) preached at Paul’s Cross, the xiiij Dec. 1550. (small 8vo. B. L. sign. E. 2.)

Speaking of the University of Cambridge, he says, “There be dyuers ther which ryse dayly betwixte foure and fyue of the clocke in the mornynge, and from fyve untill syxe of the clocke, use common prayer wyth an exhortacion of Gods worde in a common chappell, and from sixe unto ten of the clocke use ever eyther pryuate study or com-mune lectures. At Ten of the Clocke they go to Dynner,

* The frequency of this phrase in the Houshold Book shews that CLOCKS were then common.

“whereas they be content wyth a penyē pyece of byefe
 “amongst iiii. havynge a few potage made of the brothe
 “of the same byefe, with salte and otemell and nothyngē “els.

“After thys slender dinner they be either teachynge or “learnynge until v. of the clocke in the evenynge, when as “they have a Supper not much better then thyr dyner.
 “Immedyatelye after the whyche, they go eyther to reason“yng in problemes or unto some other studye, untyll it be “nyne or tenne of the clocke, and there beyng wythout fyre
 “are fayne to walk or runne up and downe halfe an houre,
 “to gette a heate on their feete when they go to bedde.”

About the middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign the Dining Hour was somewhat later; tho' even then it was still kept up to TEN O'CLOCK in the Universities, where the established System is not so easily altered as in private families.
 “With us (says the Author of the Description of England “prefixed to Holingshed's Chronicle) the Nobilitie, Gentry,
 “and Students do ordinarilie go to dinner at ELEVEN before “noone, and to supper at five, or betweene FIVE and SIX
 “at afternoone. The Merchants dine and sup seldome be“fore TWELVE at noone, and at six at night especiallie in “London. The Husbandmen dine also at high noone as “they call it, and sup at seven or eight; but OUT OF “THE TEARME in our Universities the Scholars DINE AT “TEN.”

We have seen above (in Note to p. 103.) that ELEVEN continued to be the Dining-hour among our Nobility, down to the middle of the last Century. And yet one would imagine that so early an hour as either TEN or ELEVEN must have very ill-suited the Nobility and Gentry at a time when they were so generally addicted to all kinds of rural sports, and made them so much the great business of their lives.

“Clyppin of Knottis.”] The late stile of Dutch Gardening was only an embellishment of the more ancient mode; the Gardens of our old Nobility consisted of Beds of Flowers laid out in whimsical forms with low clipped Borders, which they called KNOTS. The old Historian Stow, describing Fair Rosamond’s Bower, calls it “A house of wonderful “working ‘that’ after some was called Labyrinthus or “Dedalus Work; which was wrought like unto a KNOT in a “Garden, called a Maze.” See Reliques of Anc. Eng. Poetry, Vol. II. p. 441, 2d Ed.

“The five Joys of our Lady.”] These, I suppose, are what are now called in the little Eng. Manuals of the Rosary, “The five Joyful Mysteries;” which are, 1. The Annunciation of the Blessed Lady. 2. The Visitation of St. Elizabeth. 3. The Nativity of our Lord. 4. The Presentation of him in the Temple. 5. The finding the Child Jesus in the Temple. They are opposed to the five DOLOURS of our Lord, sc. 1. Our Lord’s bloody Sweat in the Garden. 2. His scourging at the Pillar. 3. His being crowned with Thorns. 4. His carrying the Cross. 5. His Crucifixion.

Ibid.

“Saint Blayes Day.”] The Anniversary of St. Blasius is the 3d of February: when it is still the custom in many parts of England to light up Fires on the hills on St. Blayse Night; a custom anciently taken up, perhaps for no better reason, than the jingling resemblance of his Name to the Word BLAZE.

Page 322.

“When his Lordship crepith the Cross.”] This old Popish Ceremony is particularly described in an ancient Book of the Ceremonial of the Kings of England, bought by the present Dutchess of Northumberland, at the Sale of Manuscripts of the late Mr. Anstis, Garter king at Arms. I shall give the whole passage at length, only premising that in 1536, when the Convocation under Hen. VIII. abolished some of the old superstitious practices, this of Creeping to the Cross on Good-Friday, &c. was ordered to be retained as a laudable and edifying custom. See Herb. Life of Henry VIII.

“The ORDER of the KINGE, on Good Friday, touchinge
“The cominge to service, Hallowing of the CRAMPE RINGS,
“and Offeringe and CREEPINGE TO THE CROSSE.

“Firste, the Kinge to come to the Chapell or Closset, “withe the Lords, and Noblemen, waytinge upon him, with-
“out any Sword borne before hime as that day: And ther
“to tarrie in his Travers until the Bishope and the Deane
“have brought in the Crucifixe out of the Vestrie, and layd
“it upon the Cushion before the highe Alter. And then “the Usher to lay a Carpett for the Kinge to CREEPE TO
“THE CROSSE upon. And that done ther shall be a Forme “sett upon the Carpett before the Crucifix, and a Cussion
“laid upon it for the Kinge to kneale upon. And the Master “of the Jewell Howse ther to be ready with the Crampe “Rings in a bason of Silver, and the King to kneele upon
“the Cushion before the Forme, And then the Clerke of “the Closett be redie with the Booke concerninge the Hal-“lowinge of the Crampe Rings, and the Amner [i.e. Almoner]
“moste kneele on the right hand of the Kinge holdinge

“the sayd booke. When that is done, the King shall rise
 “and goe to the Altar, wheare a Gent. Usher shall be redie
 “with a Cushion for the Kinge to kneele upon: And then
 “the greatest Lords that shall be ther to take the Bason with
 “the Rings, and beare them after the Kinge to offer. And “thus done the Queene shall come downe out of her Closset
 “or Traverse, into the Chappell with La. and Gentlewomen “waytinge upon her, and CREEPE TO THE CROSSE: And “then goe agayne to her Closett or Traverse. And then the “La. to CREEPE TO THE CROSSE likewise; And the Lords
 “and Noblemen likewise.”

On the subject of these CRAMP-RINGS, I cannot help observing, that our ancient Kings, even in those dark times of superstition, do not seem to have affected to cure the King's Evil; at least in the MS. above quoted there is no mention or hint of any power of that sort. This miraculous gift was left to be claimed by the STUARTS: our ancient PLANTAGENETS were humbly content to cure the CRAMP.

“A Mes [Mass] of Requiem upon the Morowe [of] my “Lord's Father's xij Month Mynde.”] A TWELVE MONTHS MIND was an anniversary in times of Popery, an annual solemnity for commemorating the deceased. There was also a “Week's Mind,” and a “Month's Mind; from which last came the common phrase of having a Month's Mind to any thing. Among the Interrogatories and Observations concerning the Clergy, in 1552, it was ordered that particular inquiry be made, (Inter. VII.) “Whether there “are any Months Mind and Anniversaries:” i. e. xii

“The Holy Blode of Haillis.”] This was a pretended Relique of the Blood of our Saviour, which was brought from the Holy Land and Deposited in the Monastery of Hales in Gloucestershire by Fdmund Earl of Cornwall, (son of Richard King of the Romans, brother of King Henry III.) It has been commonly said to have been the blood of a Duck changed every week, of which a very diverting account is given by Collier in his Eccles. Hist. Vol. I. page 14.

But Hearne has printed the Report of the Commissioners, who were sent purposely to examine it, at the Dissolution of the Monasteries; and it plainly appears to have been neither more nor less than CLARIFIED HONEY, “which being in a glasse, appeared to be of a glisterynge Redd reseablynge “partly the color of Blod.”—See Petri Benedicti Vita et Gest. “Our Lady of Walsingham.”] The famous Image of the Virgin Mary, preserved in the Priory of Black Canons at Walsingham in Norfolk, was celebrated all over Europe for the great Resort of Pilgrims and the rich offerings made to it. We have a very curious and entertaining account of it given us by Erasmus, under the Name of Virgo Parathalassia, in his famous Colloquy, intitled Perigrinatio Religionis Ergo. See also the Reliques of Anc. Eng. Poetry, Vol. II. B. 1. S. 13.

“The Abbot of Mesx,” &c.] This I find to be the real name of an Abbey in the East-riding of Yorkshire. A few miles distance North of Leckingfield lies Watton; to the South lies Beverley (a frequent burying Place of the Percies:) and to the South East is the Abbey of Meaux, called in Latin Melsa, and pronounced by the Common People Meuss: of which some remains are still visible.

“The Barne Bishop of Beverly—Barne Bishop of York.”] It was an ancient Custom in such Churches as had Cathedral Service for the little Choristers on St. Nicholas’s Day. (Dec. 6.) to elect one of their Number to the Episcopus Puerorum the BEARN (i. e. Infant) BISHOP, or Chorister Bishop; who continued to preside over the rest, with an Imitation of all the Episcopal Functions, till Innocents Day, (Dec. 28.) and then after solemn processions, and great pageantry, he laid down his Office. He was chosen on St. Nicholas’s Day because St. Nicholas was the Patron Saint of Children, He having when an Infant shewn such singular piety (as the Legend says) that when he was at his Mother’s breast, he would not suck on Wednesdays and Fridays, that he might observe the Fasts of the Church. In the Posthumous Tracts John Gregory, 4to. 1650, is a full account of the office, &c. of the Episcopus Puerorum, to which I refer the Reader; only adding here from an ancient MS. an inventory of the splendid Robes and Ornaments belonging to one of these Bearn-Bishops, which was communicated by Thomas Astle, Esq.

“The King’s Shames.”] The Shalm, or Shawm was a wind Instrument like a Pipe, with a swelling Protuberance in the Middle. In Commenius’s Visible World, translated by Hoole, 1659, the Latin word Gingras is translated by SHAWM, and the form of the Instrument is represented as in the annexed Figure. viz.

“Psalls” is undoubtedly Souls.—St. Nicholas was the reputed Patron of Children, for a reason assigned in p. 423. See also Knight’s Life of Dean Collet.

“An Abbot of Misrule at Christmas.”] This, probably, was the same respectable personage, that was known after the Reformation (when the word ABBOT had acquired an ill sound) by the title of LORD OF MISRULE; who in the Houses of our Nobility presided over the Christmas Gambols, and promoted mirth and jollity at that festive season. In Scotland, where the Reformation took a more severe and gloomy turn, this and some other sportive characters were thought worthy of an Act of Parliament to suppress them: for, I take for granted the Scottish ABBOT of UN-REASON, was no other than our English ABBOT of MISRULE.

See the 6th Parl. of Qu. Marie of Scotland, 1555.—“ITEM, “It is statute and ordained, that in all times cumming, na maner of Person be chosen “Robert Hude,” nor “Little John,” “ABBOT OF UN-REASON,” “Queenis of “May,” nor otherwise, nouthur in Burgh nor to Landwart “[i. e. in the country] in onie time to cum.” And this under very high Penalty, viz. in Burghs, to the chusers of such characters, loss of Freedom and other punishment “at “the Queenis Grace’ Will:” and Banishment from the realme to the “acceptor of sik-like office.” And in the Country to the chusers a forfeiture of 10 l. and imprisonment “during the Queenis Grace Pleasure.” “And gif onie Women or uthers about summer, hees [hies,] singand [i. e. singing] . . . throw Burrowes and uthers Landward Tounes, “the Women . . . sall be taken, handled, and put upon the “Cuck-stules of everie Burgh or Towne.”

“Tren Platters” are “Treen,” i. e. Wooden Platters or Trenchers.—“Eshen Cups” are Ashen Cups.

It has been observed in the Preface, that “Pewter Plates” were too costly to be used common. In Rymer’s Fædera, is a Licence granted in 1430, for a ship to carry certain commodities for the express use of the King of Scotland, among which are particularly mentioned a supply of Pewter Dishes and wooden Trenchers, “Octo duodenis vasorum de Peuter, mille et ducentis Ciphis ligneis.” Tom. 10. p. 470. See a Specimen of Notes on the Statute Law of Scotland, [by Sir David Dalrymple, Bart.] 8vo.

In the same cargo, was also a Cloth-sack, (so often mentioned in this Book) Uno Cloth-sack. Ibid.

“My Lord’s Trussing Bed” was probably what might be trussed into a Portmanteau, or Cloth-sack, &c.

“When my Lord keeps his secret House.”] At certain times of the year the Nobility retired from their principal Mansion to some little adjoining Lodge; where they lived private, no longer kept open house, but put their Servants to Board Wages, dismissed part of them to go to their Friends, and only retained a few of the most necessary about their person. It is remarkable that even during this privacy the Earl of Northumberland was not to be without his proper Officers of State, and therefore his younger Sons, and the young Gentlemen who were constantly resident with him, were at those times to supply Offices of Carver, Sewer, &c.

The SEWAR was the Officer who placed the Dishes on the Table, (See Johnson's Dict.) He and the CARVER had precedence over the other Houshold Attendants, as being nearest the Lord's Person at Table, standing probably on each side of him.

It appears from this, and other Instances, that the Nobility about this time had great regard to the Splendour of their Choral Service; for which reason a short account of its Origin, may not be improperly subjoined here.

“CHORAL OR ANTIPHONAL Singing was introduced into
 “the Service of the Church about the middle of the fourth “Century, under the patronage of St. Chrysostome and St.
 “Basil in the East, and of St. Ambrose in the West. It was “afterwards much improved by Gregory the Great, and “became universal throughout the Christian Church. It was “looked upon to be so necessary in the celebration of Divine “Service, that it was a considerable part of the duty of the “Monks, not only to study it themselves, but to disseminate
 “the knowledge of it among the Laity: for this purpose “Children were maintained in Convents, and taught the “Rudiments of Song. GUIDO ARETINUS, the inventor of “the present System of Music, in his Micrologus says, that
 “by the invention of the Syllables UT, RE, MI, FA, SOL,
 “LA, he was enabled to improve the Children of his Con“vent more in one Month, than others could in Twelve.

“PUTTA, an ancient Bishop of Rochester, being deprived of his See, travelled about the County of Kent, teaching the Children of the Poor to sing. BEDE in his Ecclesiastical History tells us, that the Inhabitants of Britain were taught singing by John the Arch-Chanter of the Church of St. Peter at Rome; and that he was sent hither for that purpose by Pope AGATHO. Many years after the establishment of the Choral Service most of the Cathedrals in this Kingdom had a peculiar Formulary; of these the most famous was that in Usum Sarum; whence the Proverb Secundum Usum Sarum. Sir THOMAS MORE used to join with the Choir habited in a Surplice. King HENRY the VIIth. composed an Anthem in five Parts, “O Lord, the maker of all things,” which is frequently sung in Cathedrals. Somewhat before this time Choral Service was performed in the Chapels of the Greater Nobility, who appear to have paid particular attention to this subject, and vied with each other in the Splendour and Ornaments of their Choirs.*

“But about the time of the Reformation such abuses had crept into the Choral Service, which had departed from its primitive simplicity and dignity, that not only the Council of Trent passed a Decree against “curious and artificial singing,” but the thirty two Commissioners in the Reformatio Legum Ecclesiasticarum expressed their disapprobation of it in very strong terms. Queen MARY, who loved Music, and played on several Instruments, laboured to support it, and in her reign the formulary In Usum Sarum was republished. At the Accession of her Sister ELIZABETH to the crown, the Clergy were divided in their opinions about the use of Church Music; the first Sta“tutes of Uniformity seemed to consider it as a thing indif“ferent, but the Queen by her Injunctions made it a part “of Cathedral Worship. In this she is supposed to have had “the concurrence of PARKER, Arch-Bishop of Canterbury,

 “who had been taught to sing in his youth, and was a great “lover of Music, as was also the Queen. The Protestant “Cathedral Service was chiefly composed by JOHN MAR-
 “BUCK, of whom the Reader may see an Account in FOX’s “Martyrology.”

This curious and learned memoir was communicated by JOHN HAWKINS, Esq. of Twickenham, to whom the World will soon be indebted for “A GENERAL HISTORY
 “of the Science and Practice of MUSIC; with MEMOIRS
 “of the most eminent MUSICIANS, and Remarks on their “Work.”

There is a passage in an old Play, intituled “The Interlude of the four Elements:” (written about the beginning of Henry the VIIIth’s reign) which shews what high regard was anciently paid to Church Music.

HUMANITY says,

“Dryk=song may not be dispysed,
 “For therewith God is well plesyd,
 “Honowred, praysyd, and servyd
 “In the Church oft tymes among.

YGNORAUNCE answers,

“Is God well pleasyd, trowst thou, therby?
 “May, nay, for there is no reason why:

“Chambers and Houses.”] In the Castles of our ancient Nobility, the Apartments were of two kinds, viz. either CHAMBERS, which were principally within the Castle-Keep or Dungeon, Fr. or else little detached HOUSES built in the Lower Court under the shelter of the Walls. These from the unskilful Architecture of those simple Times, were clustered together without any symmetry or regard to external beauty.

Page 373.

The ANTIPHONAR, Lat. Antiphonarium (Gr. Ἀντι contra & φωνη sonus) is the name of a Book, in the Latin Service, which contained the Responsories, Verses, Collects, and whatever is sung or said in the Choir, called the Seven Hours, or Breviary, GRAIL, Lat. Gradale, is the name of the Book, which contained all that was sung by the Choir at High-Mass; the Tracts, Sequences, Hallelujahs; the Creeds, Offertory &c. as also the Office for sprinkling the Holy-Water.—See Burn’s Eccles. Law.

As to the "VESTMENTS and COPES:" The COPES were a sort of Robes (often richly embroidered) worn by the Priests over the Albs, &c. when they consecrated the Elements. At which times the Priests and Deacons who assisted, only wore TUNICLES, viz. Silk Sky-coloured Robes, probably here called "Single Vestments."—See Wheatly on the Common Prayer.

Ibid.

The "Purpaines or Portpaines" (See page 16.) and "Co-verpaines" used in the Pantry, seem to have been a kind of Napkins and Table Cloths. They probably had their Name from the Latin Pannus. We have still the Word "Counterpaine" from the same original.

Ibid.

"All other my Lordes Chapell Stuff to be sent afore by my Lords Chariot before his Lordship remeve."] From this application of the CHARIOT for the conveyance of the more heavy part of the Chapel Furniture, and from the mention in the preceding page, that part of the Wardrobe Stuff was to be carried in the same vehicle, it appears pretty evidently that my Lord's Chariot bore no resemblance to the modern carriage of that name, nor was intended for the same use; but was simply a large Waggon drawn by six or seven of the stronger kind of Horses, called on that account "Large trotting Horses," (page 127.) The CHARIOTMEN or WAGGONERS, who accompanied it, having a Nag or smaller Horse allowed them to ride by its side. (page 128.)

It is remarkable that in all those passages of Scripture where in the present Translation mention is made of WAGGONS, in the more early Versions have the Word CHARIOT, or CHARETT uniformly in its stead. Thus in Numbers vii. 3. "And they brought unto the Lord six covered Waggons;" is in the old Version by T. Matthew, Ed. 1537, rendered "six covered Charettes." It is the same in Tyndal's Ed. 1551. in Miles Coverdale's Ed. 1550. in that of Hen. VIIIth. &c. —See also Ezek. xxiii. 24, &c. &c.

Our Word CHARIOT comes from the French Word Chariot, a Waggon. —See Cotgrave's Dictionary, 1632. Where we are also told, that the French name of Chariot, which primarily signifies a Waggon, was also given to "a kind of Litter borne up by an axeltree and two wheels; used heretofore by Citizen's Wives, who were not able, or not allowed to keep ordinary Litters." Hence by degrees it became applied to the vehicles to which it is now peculiarly appropriated.

The Use of COACHES is said to have been first introduced into England by Fitz-Allan, Earl of Arundel, A. D. 1580. —(See Anderson's Origin of Commerce, Vol. I. page 421.) At first they were only drawn with Two Horses. It was the favourite BUCKINGHAM*, who, about 1619, began to draw with Six Horses, which (Wilson tells us) "was wondered at then as a novelty, and imputed to him as a master-ing pride." See his life of K. James, 1653. Fol. page 130.

Before that time Ladies chiefly rode on horse-back, either single on their Palfreys, or double behind some person on a Pillion. Not but in case of sickness, or bad weather, they had HORSE-LITTERS, and even vehicles called CHAIRS, and CARRS or CHARRES. This appears not only from page 339 of this Household Book; but more particularly from a very Curious account of the Manner of receiving the Princess Catharine of Spain, when she came over to marry Prince Arthur, A. D. 1501. The Original MS. is preserved in the British Museum, [Harl. MSS. 69. (25).] whence I shall extract the following passages.

* About the same time he introduced Sedan-Chairs. See Wilson, ibid.

“The said Princess shall be met about Blackwall, with the States [i. e. Great Personages] following: That is to say the Duke of Bucks in one Barge: The Bishop of Bath in another: The Bishop of Exeter in another: The Earl of NORTHUMBERLAND [the Author of this Household Book] in another; the Earl of Kent in another, &c.”—
“[These are to conduct her to the Tower].

* * * *

“WHEN the Princess shall dislodge out of the Tower, It is appointed that then my Lord of York [Hen. viij.] and all the other Lords and Nobles, be ready at the said Tower on horse-back, to convey her to the West-Door of the Church of St. Paul's, &c.

“Item, That a rich Litter be ready to receive and convey the said Princess to the West Door of the Church of St. Paul's.

“Item, That three Horsemen in Side Saddle and Harness all of one Suit, be arrayed by the Master of the Queen's Horse, to follow next to the said Princess's Litter.

“Item, That a fair Palfrey with a Pillion richly arrayed and led in hand for the said Princess, do follow next unto the said Horsemen.

“Item, That eleven Palfreys in one Suit be ordained for such Ladies attending upon the said Princess, as shall follow next unto the said Pillion.

“Item, That five Charres diversely apparelled for the Ladies and Gentlemen, be ready the same Time at the said Tower, whereof one of the Chief must be richly apparelled and garnished for the said Princess, and the other four to serve such Ladies as be appointed by the Queen's Chamberlain, and that the same follow in such order as the said Chamberlain shall appoint.

“ Item, That betwixt every of the said Charres, there be “ five or six Palfreys of such Ladies as shall come to the Feast
 “ for the attendance given upon the Queen’s Grace.”

“ THE third Day after the Day of Marriage the said “ Prince and Princess to depart from the said Palace [sc. the “ Bishop of London’s adjoining to St. Paul’s] towards “ Baynard’s Castle, to go to Westminster with the King’s “ Grace, and that the said Princess so departing shall ride
 “ in her LITTER or on her spare Horse, with the PILLION
 “ behind a Lord to be named by the King, and eleven Ladies
 “ on Palfreys after her, &c.

THE END OF THE NOTES.

AN ACCOUNT OF WRESSIL CASTLE
AND LECKENFIELD MANOUR,
YORKSHIRE.

To render this Work compleat, it may not be improper to give a short account of the two great Mansions at WRESSIL and LECKENFIELD, which were the scenes of the Hospitality described in the foregoing Part of this Book.

With regard to WRESSIL CASTLE, we have a very particular Description of it by Leland, a few years after the Date of the foregoing Book. See his Itinerary, begun 1538, Vol. I. fol. 59.

WRESSIL CASTLE.

“ From Houeden to Wresehill, [are] 3 Miles; al by low “ Meadow and Pasture Ground, whereof part is enclosid with “ Hegges.

“ Yet is the Ground, that the Castelle of Wresehil standith

“ Most Part of the Basse Court of the Castelle of Wresehil, “ is all of Tymbre *.

“ The Castelle it self is moted about on 3 Partes. The “ 4 Parte is dry where the entre is ynto the Castelle.

* i.e. The buildings in the Base-Court are of Timber.

“ The Castelle is al of very fair and greate squarid Stone,
 “ both withyn and withowte : whereof (as sum hold opinion)
 “ much was brought owt of France.

“ In the Castelle be only 5 Towers, One at each corner “ almost of like biggeness. The Gate House is the 5, having “ fyve Lougginges yn high. 3 of the other Towers have 4
 “ Highes in Lougginges : The 4 conteinith the Bottery, Pan“ tery, Pastery, Lardery, and Kechyn.

“ The Haule * and the Great Chaumbers be fair : and so
 “ is the Chappell, and the Clossettes.

“ To conclude, the House is one of the most propre
 “ beyond Trente, and seemeth as newly made : yet was it “ made by a youngger Brother of the Percys, Erle of Wic-“ cester, that was yn high favor with Richard the Secunde,

“ The Basse Courte is of a newer Building.

“ And the last Erle of Northumberland saving one ‡, made

“ There is a Parke hard by the Castelle.”

THREE of the Apartments in Wressill Castle, were adorned with POETICAL INSCRIPTIONS, as mentioned in the Preface (p. xix). These are called in the MS.

“ PROVERBES in the LODGINGS in WRESSILL.”

1. “ The Proverbes in the Sydis of the Innere Chamber “ at Wressill.’ This is a Poem of 24 Stanzas, each containing 7 Lines: beginning thus,

“ When it is tyme of coste and greate expens,

 “ Who that outrageously makithe his dispens,
 “ Causythe his goodes not long to endure, &c.

WRESSIL CASTLE continued in all its Splendor, till the fatal Civil Wars broke out in 1641: It was then garrisoned with Soldiers for the Parliament; and notwithstanding the Earl of Northumberland had espoused their Cause, the Damage he sustained there by his own Party before Michaelmas 1646, was judged to amount to a thousand Pounds,* in the Destruction of his Buildings, Leads, Outhouses, &c. by the Garrison: their havock of his Woods, Inclosures, &c. without including the Losses he had sustained in the Non-payments of his Rents, in consequence of the Contributions levied on his Tenants.

On the decline of the King's Party, it should seem, that the Northern Counties enjoyed some respite; but in 1648, some Attempts being made or expected from the Royalists, fresh Troops were sent into the north; and in May that Year, Major-General Lambert, ordered a small Detachment of 60 Men to garrison Wressel Castle, of which Major Charles Fenwick had all along continued Governor for the Parliament, with the intire approbation of the Earl of Northumberland.

About the Beginning of June 1648, Pomfret Castle was seized for the King, and underwent a Siege of ten months: to prevent any more Surprizes of this kind, and a resolution was taken for demolishing all the Castles in that Part of England:

* Extracted from a "Brief View of the Arrearages, and Losses sustained by his Lp. occasioned by the late unhappy Warres," MS. dated Michas. 1646. The Sum total of his Losses even then amounted to 42,554*l*.

And while the Earl of Northumberland was exerting all his influence above, to save this noble Seat of his Ancestors, a Committee at York sent a sudden and unexpected Order to dismantle it: which was executed with such precipitation and fury, that before the Earl could receive notice of the design, the mischief was done.

The following Letters, selected from a Series on this subject, will shew the Spirit of the Times, and how little respect was shown to this great Nobleman, by the low People, who had wrested the power into their hands.

I. A LETTER to MR. PRICKETT at YORK.

 “ pieces, and if their be not some speedy course taken for to “ preserve the Timber, Lead, Glasse, and Wainscott, by “ taking them downe att his Lordships cost, they will be all “ spoyled and broaken to peeces. I pray see if you can get “ an Order from the Committee to stay the proceedings till
 “ we can take course to preserve those things for his Lord“ ships use; the workemen doe not looke to save any of the “ materiels but take the readyest course to throw downe the

From this 30th of December, 1648, no further outrages were committed, till the year 1650. And then notwithstanding all the endeavours of the Earl of Northumberland to preserve it, an Order was issued out for the further demolishing of Wressil Castle. The only indulgence he obtained was that the execution of the Order should be intrusted to his own Stewards, and that part of the principal Building should be spared, to serve for a Manor-House.

In consequence of this Order, three Sides of the Square, which formerly composed WRESSIL CASTLE, were entirely demolished. However the whole South-Front, which was the most considerable, and contained some of the principal State-Rooms, still remains, and is very magnificent. It is flanked by two large square Towers ; and these again are mounted by circular Turrets of a smaller size ; on the top of one of the turrets is still preserved the Iron Pan of the Beacon, anciently used to alarm the country.

The whole Building, which is of the finest masonry, still contains the Great Chamber or Dining-Room, the Drawing-Chamber, and the Chapel, besides many of the inferior Apartments. In all these the finishing and ornaments seem to be left nearly in the same state that they were in the time of this HOUSEHOLD BOOK. The Cielings still appear richly carved, and the sides of the Rooms are ornamented with a great profusion of ancient Sculpture, finely executed in wood, exhibiting the ancient Bearings, Crests, Badges and Devises of the PERCY Family, in a great variety of forms, set off with all the advantages of Painting, Gilding and Imagery. In the two principal Chambers are small beautiful Stair-Cases of very singular contrivance with octagon Screens, inbattled at the top, and covered with very bold sculpture, containing double flights of Stairs, winding round each other, after the design of Paladio.

The Chapel appears to have been fitted up in a ruder style and at a more early period than the other apartments. In this the sculptured Badges, &c. are still tolerably entire, and some of the painted glass unbroken. The Cieling is inscribed with the following Motto, Esperance en Dieu ma Comforte. The Chapel is now used instead of the Parish-Church, which was situate about a bow-shot from the Castle. Of this one ruined end-wall only remains, in which at present hang two Bells. The Pulpit now stands as on a pedestal, upon the great stone Altar of the Chapel, and the Communion is administered at a Table in the middle of the room.

LECKINFIELD MANOUR-HOUSE,

OR, as it is not improperly stiled in the Title-page, LECKINFIELD CASTLE, (for it was fortified by a Licence from the Crown in 2 Edw. II.*) is now so entirely destroyed that the area on which it stood (forming a parallelogram of 4 acres) now affords a rich green pasture, being still inclosed by the ancient Mote, which is wide and deep, and full of Water.

* Dugd. Baron. I. 273.

The Castle is thus described by Leland, in his Itinerary, (Vol. 1. fol. 50.) as it was about the Year 1538.

“ Al the way bytwixt York, and the Parke of Lekenfeld ys meetely fruteful of corn and Grasse, but it hath little wood.- - “ Lekingfeld is a large House, and stondith withyn a great Mote yn one very spacious Courte. Three partes of the House, saving the Meane Gate that is made of brike, is al of tymbere. The fourth parte is made of stone and some brike.

“ I saw in a little studying Chaumber ther caullid PARADICE, the Genealogie of the PERCYS.

“ The Park thereby is very fair and large and meetely welle woddid. There is a fair Tour of brike for a Lodge yn the Park. From Lekinfield to Beverle 2 Miles.”

The following Apartments in Leckinfield had poetical Inscriptions: as mentioned in the Preface, p. xxii.

“ PROVERBS in the LODGINGS at LECKINFIELD.”

1. “ The Proverbis of the Garrett over the Bayne at Le-kyngfelde.” This is a Dialogue in 32 stanzas, of 4 lines, between “ The Parte Sensatyve,” and “ the Parte Intellectyve;” containing a poetical Comparison between sensual, and intellectual Pleasures.

2. “ The Proverbis in the Garet at the New Lodge in the Parke of Lekingfelde.” This is a Poem in 32 stanzas, of 4 lines, being a Descant on Harmony, as also on the manner of Singing, and playing on most of the Instruments then used: sc. The Harps, Clavicordes, Lute, Virginall, Clarisymballis, Clarion, Shawme, Orgayne, Recorder. The following stanza relates to the SHAWME, described in p. 424, and shows it to have been used for the Bass, as the RECORDER was for the Meane or Tenor).

“ A SHAWME makithe a sweete sounde for he tunithe BASSE,

“ It mountithe not to hy, but kepithe rule and space.

“ Yet yf it be blowne with a too vehement wynde,

“ It makithe it to misgoverne oute of his kynde.”

3. "The Proverbis in the Rooffe of the Hyest Chawmbre
"in the Gardinge at Lekingfelde." If we suppose this to be the room mentioned above, where the Genealogy was kept;
the following jingling reflections on the family Motto (in 30 Distichs) will not appear quite so misplaced:

"Esperaunce en Dyeu,*

"Truste in hym he is most trewe.

"En Dieu esperaunce;

"In hym put thine affiaunce.

"Esperaunce in the Worlde? nay;

"The Worlde varieth every day.

"Esperaunce in Riches? nay, not so,

"Riches slidithe and sone will go.

"Esperaunce in exaltacion of Honoure?

"Nay it widderrithe . . . lyke a flour.

"Esperaunce in bloode and highe Lynage?

"At moste nede, bot esy avauntage.

The concluding Distich is,

"Esperaunce en Dieu, in hym is all:

"Be thou contente and thou art above Fortune's fall."

4. "The Proverbis in the Roufe of my Lord Percy Closett
"at Lekyngfelde." A poetical Dialogue containing instruc"tions for Youth, in 142 Lines.

5. "The Proverbis in the Roufe of my Lordis Library at "Lekyngfelde." 23 stanzas of 4 Lines, whereof take the following Specimen.

* The FOURTH EARL of Northumberland, father of the Author of the Houshold-Book, gave his Motto somewhat different, sc.
Esperance ma comforte: And this Motto was engraven over the great Gateway at Alnwick Castle.

“ To every tale geve thou no credens.
 “ Prove the cause, or * thou gyve sentens.
 “ Agayn the right make no dyffens
 “ So hast thou a clene Consciens.”

6. “ The Counsell of Aristotell, whiche he gave to Alexan“ der kinge of Macedony; in the Syde of the Garet of the “ gardynge in Lekynfelde.” This consists of 9 stanzas, of 8
 Lines: Take the last stanza but one:

“ Punyshe moderatly, and discretly correct,
 “ As well to mercy, as to justice havynge a respect;
 “ So shall ye have meryte for the punyshment,
 “ And cause the offender to be sory and penitent.
 “ If ye be movede with anger or hastynes,
 “ Pause in youre mynde and your yre repress:
 “ Defer vengeance unto your anger asswagede be;
 “ So shall ye mynyster justice, and do dewe equitye.”

The above documents, however mean and homely the verse, are not unworthy the notice of any great personage in the most polished age or nation.

As the Reader may be curious to know how our first Nobility were accommodated with apartments in their largest mansions,
 I shall subjoin a List of all the Rooms of every kind, that were in LECKINFIELD MANOUR HOUSE: being nearly double the number that were in WRESSEL CASTLE, as appears from an Inventory of them both now before me, taken in the year 1574. The names of the Apartments in both were so much alike, that the enumeration of one was thought sufficient.

The Furniture of the Apartments in both these Mansions consisted of nothing but Long Tables, Benches. Cupboards, and Bedsteads, and contained nothing curious: otherwise the Inventory should have been printed at large.

* i. e. “ before.” See the above Note to p. 157.

It is observable that in upwards of Fourscore Apartments there do not seem to have been more than three or four destined for the reception of the noble Owners and their Guests: these were probably, the Drawing-Chamber, the New-Chamber, the Carved-Chamber, and the Great Chamber or Dining-room: all the rest were meerly offices, or cabins to sleep in.

I shall premise, that the GREAT CHAMBER contained only "a Long Table upon a Frame, a Cupboard with a dore;" and the HALL "Six great standing Tables, with sixe Forms, "three Cupbours, - - - two Dores, neither Locks nor "Keyes."

At the end of the above INVENTORY, the Surveyors report that they find the "Decayes of the Howse at Leckinfield, "to be much greater, and of more charge, than of that at "Wressel; and that the greatest part of the said Howse, as "well the Lead Cover, as Tyle, must be taken of, and new "tymbered, &c. &c." They conclude their Rebot in the following words, "We cannot speke of the particular harmes "of the said Howse, the Waste is so universal."

Thence-forward, it was probably never repaired; but after some time pulled down and demolished; for I have seen an account sent up to the succeeding Earl of Northumberland in James the First's reign, of the Quantity of Timber, Painted Glass, and Carved Images in the Ceilings, &c. which were removed by his order from Leckenfield to Wressel Castle.

THERE are few parts in the British Isles that have yielded so many interesting relics of pre-historic times as has East Yorkshire, and few districts have been so thoroughly explored. For over forty years Mr. J. R. Mortimer has been investigating the various barrows and other early monuments of the Riding. The results of his labours are now given to the world in the form of a volume, and, unquestionably, the work is one of the most valuable contributions to archæology that has been issued for some time. Mr. Mortimer's museum at Driffield, in which his geological and archæological collections are arranged, has long been a place of reference alike to professors and students. A detailed prospectus will be posted free to any address on application.

THE CROSS IN RITUAL, ARCHITECTURE, AND ART.

By the Rev. GEO. S. TYACK, B.A.,

Author of "Lore and Legend of the English Church," "A Book about Bells," "Historic Dress of the Clergy," &c.

207 pages, Crown 8vo, Bound in Cloth, Gilt Top. Offered at the Special price of 3s. 9d. net.

Through all Booksellers or direct from the Publishers.

THE Author of this volume has brought together much valuable and out-of-the-way information, which cannot fail to interest and instruct the reader. The work is the result of careful study, and its merits entitle it to a permanent place in public and private libraries. Many beautiful illustrations add to the value of the volume.

The interesting and valuable character of the volume will at once be seen from the following List of Chapter Headings:—

Introductory—The Development of the Crucifix—The Cross in Ceremonial—The Cross as an Ornament of the Church and its Precincts—Grave-Crosses—Public-Crosses—Memorial Crosses—Wayside and Boundary Crosses—Conclusion.

Respecting the First Edition, the following among many Press Notices appeared:—

"The book is reverent, learned, and interesting, and will be read with a great deal of profit by anyone who wishes to study the history of the sign of our Redemption."—Church Times.

"The volume teems with facts, and it is evident that Mr. Tyack has made his study a labour of love, and spared no research in order, within the prescribed limits, to make his work complete. He has given us a valuable work of reference, and a very instructive and entertaining volume."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

"An engrossing and instructive narrative."—Dundee Advertiser.

"As a popular account of the Cross in history, we do not know that a better book can be named."—Glasgow Herald.

"It is copiously and well illustrated, lucidly ordered and written, and deserves to be widely known."—Yorkshire Post.

THE GROTESQUE IN CHURCH ART.

BY T. TINDALL WILDRIDGE.

REVISED AND CHEAPER EDITION.

With nearly 150 Illustrations, bound in Cloth boards, price 7/6.

THE subject of this volume is one which proves of peculiar fascination to almost every visitor to Gothic edifices, being one that has ever provoked the mirth of the curious and the curiosity of the cultured. Yet it has, with scarcely any exception, been made the occasion of descriptions of particular examples rather than of explanation of their presence and general meanings.

To enquire into the origin of Grotesques or of the ideas underlying them, into the causes of their execution and retention, to mark into what classes they fall, to analyse the comic by intention and the comic by misadventure, are among the objects of this study. The general contention of the author is that while Gothic grotesques reflect much of mediæval life, they are less remarkable on that account than they are as embodiments of a continuity of thought from ages far remote from the ken of history.

CONTENTS.

Preface—Introduction—Definitions of the Grotesque—The Carvers—The Artistic Quality of Church Grotesques—Gothic Ornament not Didactic—Ingrained Paganism—Mythic Origin of Church Carvings—Hell's Mouth—Satanic Representations—The Devil and the Vices—Ale and the Alewife—Satire without Satan—Scriptural Illustrations—Masks and Faces—Trinities—The Domestic and Popular—Animal Musicians—Compound Forms—Nondescripts—Rebuses—The Fox in Mediæval Art—The Situations of Church Grotesques—Index.

PRESS OPINIONS.

“The combination of literary and artistic talent which Mr. Wildridge possesses renders this work of great value.”—The Academy.

“It is an entertaining, instructive, and all respects a valuable work.”—Aberdeen Free Press.

“It is a handsome volume, very fully and accurately illustrated, and it deals with a recondite subject in a broad and enlightened spirit, the author being in no way hampered by venerable theological prejudices.”—Leeds Mercury.

“An unusually interesting volume.”—Penrith Observer.

OLD CHURCH LIFE.

A Quaint and Curious Volume of Forgotten Lore.

EDITED BY

WILLIAM ANDREWS,

Author of "Curiosities of the Church," "Old Church Lore," &c.

Bound in Cloth, with Gilt Top. Offered at the Special Price of 3s. 9d. net, through all Booksellers or direct from the Publishers.

THIS work deals in a popular, and at the same time scholar-like style with historical episodes, curious customs, superstitions, old churchwardens' accounts, curiosities of the church, &c. Mr. Andrews has obtained the co-operation of several eminent scholars and authors to assist him; they have written on subjects which they have closely studied, and the result is a work by specialists. The Editor's aim is to prepare a volume of general interest, which will entertain and instruct the reader, furnish fact, illustration, and anecdote for the pulpit, for the platform, for conversation, and at the same time supply an addition to the reference library. An important feature of the present book is the many illustrations by eminent artists which will be found in its pages. The greater number of the pictures have been prepared expressly for this publication.

CONTENTS.

Courts held in Churches—Benefit of Clergy—The Miracle Play at Newcastle—Peculiar Public Penances—Curious Church Christmastide Customs—Old English Wedding Sermons—A Wedding Custom—Irregular Marriages—Burials without Coffins—Old English Funeral Sermons—Compulsory Attendance at Church—St. Paul's Walk—Spur-Money—Sluggard Wakers—Keeping Order in Church—Outrageous Conduct in Church—Troublesome Quakers—The Dog-Whipper—Churchwardens Checking Convivial Customs—Parson-Publicans—Churches in War-Time—Saltmarshe the Fanatic—Church Umbrellas—Curates Wanted in Olden Times—Cresset Stones—Crooked Spires—Burial Chimes.

"Mr. Andrews' books are always interesting."—Church Bells.

"No student of Mr. Andrews' books can be a dull after-dinner speaker, for his writings are full of curious out-of-the-way information and good stories."

THE EARLY HISTORY

OF THE

TOWN AND PORT OF HEDON

IN THE COUNTY OF YORK.

495 pages, uncut edges, Demy 8vo, half-bound and gilt top, 21s. net.

A few hand-made paper copies, Demy 4to, bound in buckram and gilt top, 42s. net.

“Truth is that when Hulle began to flourish, Heddon decayed.”—Leland.

CONTENTS :—The Origin of Hedon—The Borough of Hedon—The Port of Hedon—The Churches of Hedon—The Institutions of Hedon—The Topography of Hedon—Tenure of Hedon—An Appendix of 34 Notes, occupying 207 pages—Glossary—Index.

The little town of Hedon has a history of almost unique interest. Springing into existence very soon after the Norman Conquest, it rapidly advanced to a position of wealth and prosperity, which ranked it, in the twelfth century, amongst the great towns of England. But before the nineteenth century its decline had commenced, and from that period, despite many spasmodic attempts to revive its ancient prestige, its importance has slowly and gradually ebbed away, until now, to the casual observer, there is little except its fine church to distinguish it from any other quiet English village of its size.

In the present work the origin of Hedon, its progress, and the early period of its decline, are carefully traced. Its institutions, civil and ecclesiastical, are fully described. The illustrations include a Plan of the Town, a fac-simile of the Charter of King John, and engravings of the Ancient Maces and Seals.

The appendix contains full transcripts of the documents on which the writer has based his history of the town. These include the whole of the Regal Charters granted to Hedon from that of Henry II. to that of Henry V. ; early compôti of the Bailiffs and Chamberlain, of the Wardens of the Churches of St. Augustine, St. Nicholas, and St. James, and of the Warden of the Chantry of St. Mary ; Rentals of the Manor ; Extracts from Court Rolls ; many important Land Charters ; and the Constitutions of the Borough, temp Philip and Mary.

In addition, I have walked in Wales, Scotland, Holland, Belgium, Portugal, and Norway.

PRESS OPINIONS.

"Mr. Cooper, with whom we are glad to renew our acquaintance, takes a liberal view of his subject, and always has something pleasant, entertaining, or profitable to say."—The Spectator.

"A book bright and breezy. We like the stories for themselves, and we like the author's manner of telling them. Fresh air blows through the book, and interest is to be found in every page."—St. James' Gazette.

"Mr. Cooper's volume is welcome. George Borrow's influence is all through his writings: his discursive style, his love of the unconventional, his frankness."—Yorkshire Post.

"Not only so light and entertaining as to make good holiday reading, but also pleasantly touched with learning and culture."—Scotsman.

"Chatty, reminiscent, and well illustrated."—Westminster Gazette.

"Brief and bright, forming models of travel-talk in their delightful mingling of entertainment and instruction."—Leeds Mercury.

ROUND THE HOME OF A YORKSHIRE PARSON;

OR

STORIES OF YORKSHIRE LIFE.

By the REV. A. N. COOPER, M.A.

(VICAR OF FILEY, YORKS.),

Author of "Quaint Talks about Long Walks," "The Tramps of the Walking Parson," &c.

With 8 Full Page Photo-Illustrations, specially prepared and printed on Art Paper.

322 pages Crown 8vo, tastefully bound in cloth boards, 3s. 6d. net.

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

A FAMOUS Yorkshire parson, F. O. Morris, the naturalist, said that had he been forbidden to pass the limits of his own grounds he could have been perfectly happy and content. Only a man with a very great mind could have said that with perfect truth, a greatness to which I have no pretention. The following pages, however, will show that, although my duties keep me pretty close to my home and neighbourhood, I see many sides of life and have plenty to make me contented and happy. I should like to make the same boast as an Editor of Punch made for his paper, that I have not written a line that is unfit for anyone to read, or a word that could cause anyone pain.

PRESS OPINIONS.

"Brief stories and studies of life and customs in the East Riding. A breezy and lively book, written from first page to last with kindness, humour, and common sense."—Standard.

"Such books are not to be read every day of the week, nor are many parsons so well worth hearing. It will be our own fault and our own loss if we do not seize this opportunity of making the acquaintanceship of the Parishioners of Filey through the pages of their broad-minded and generous-hearted Vicar."—Morning Post.

"A book of the most entertaining kind, and one, too, that is worth taking home and placing on one's bookshelf."—Yorkshire Post.

"We like the anecdote about the thirsty lady in the sketch entitled 'A Yorkshire Parish,' and the story, 'An August Visitor,' is as amusing a piece of satire as we have read for a long time. There is an open-air flavour about Mr. Cooper's book which makes it very welcome; it is healthy, sane, and invariably amusing."—Publishers' Circular.

THE MIRACLE PLAY IN ENGLAND.

AN ACCOUNT OF THE EARLY RELIGIOUS DRAMA.

By SIDNEY W. CLARKE, Barrister-at-Law.

Bound in Artistic Cloth, and offered at the Special Price of 1/6 net.

Through all Booksellers or direct from the Publishers.

IN bygone times the Miracle Play formed an important feature in the religious life of England. To those taking an interest in the history of the Church of England this volume will prove useful. The author has given long and careful study to this subject, and produced a reliable and readable book, which can hardly fail to interest and instruct the reader. It is a volume for general reading, and for a permanent place in the reference library.

The Origin of Drama—The Beginnings of English Drama—The York Plays—The Wakefield Plays—The Chester Plays—The Coventry Plays—Other English Miracle Plays—The Production of a Miracle Play—The Scenery, Properties, and Dresses—Appendix—The Order of the York Plays—Extract from City Register of York, 1426—The Order of the Wakefield Plays—The Order of the Chester Plays—The Order of the Grey Friars' Plays at Coventry—A Miracle Play in a Puppet Show—Index.

“The book should be useful to many.”—Manchester Guardian.

“An admirable work.”—Eastern Morning News.

“Mr. Clarke has chosen a most interesting subject, one that is attractive alike to the student, the historian, and the general reader. . . . A most interesting volume, and a number of quaint illustrations add to its value.”—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

“Mr. Sidney Clarke's concise monograph in 'The Miracle Play in England' is another of the long and interesting series of antiquarian volumes for popular reading issued by the same publishing house. The author briefly sketches the rise and growth of the 'Miracle' or 'Mystery' play in Europe and in England; and gives an account of the series or cycle of these curious religious dramas—the forerunners of the modern secular play—performed at York, Wakefield, Chester, Coventry, and other towns in the middle ages. . . . Mr. Clarke has gone to the best sources for his information, and the volume, illustrated by quaint cuts, is an excellent compendium of information on a curious byeway of literature and art.”—The Scotsman.
